From: Steve Schmidt
To: Mueller, Raymond
Subject: Re: another but related subject
Date: Monday, April 10, 2017 1:48:37 PM

Worth considering. I can imagine staff making up excuses for some decisions that they want to rush through. I think that it would be better to have one noticing policy for everything. When many important land use & transportation policies take years, 10 days doesn't seem like much.

On Mon, Apr 10, 2017 at 10:31 AM, Mueller, Raymond <RDMueller@menlopark.org> wrote:

> Ten days is so long. Maybe for specific types of issues like land use and labor?
>
> _____
> From: Steve Schmidt <menloparksteve@gmail.com>
> Sent: Monday, April 10, 2017 10:15 AM
> To: Mueller, Raymond; Heyward Robinson
> Cc: Patti L Fry
> Subject: another but related subject
>
> Ray,
> Chuck Reed was mayor of San Jose for 7 years. We bumped into him on a bike ride two years ago. He said that one of his proudest accomplishments while mayor was requiring agendas for Planning Commission and Council to be noticed 10 days in advance of a scheduled action.. Our 72 hour requirement prevents effective analysis by interested residents or journalists. You should tack this onto your transparency proposal.
> Steve